Permits Are Sought For Labor Camps

March 27, 2014
By CASEY JUNKINS, Shale Play

MOUNDSVILLE - A new type of temporary housing is showing up in Marshall County, as energy companies are now seeking permits for "labor camps" for those working in the natural gas industry.

For Marshall County Health Department Administrator Ronda Francis, this marks a first in her 26-year career. According to public health laws, companies that have sites with 10 or more people working and living at a site must apply for a labor camp permit.

"I have been here for 26 years. We’ve never had a labor camp in the time that I have been here until last month," Francis said. "It is something you just don’t see."
